Advisory

It has come to our notice that transit passengers traveling to India via Frankfurt often do not carry their RT-PCR test result based on a test conducted within 72 hours of their expected arrival time in India, due to which they are denied boarding on their connecting flights to India. This leads to inconvenience to the passengers especially those traveling with small children.

2. Please note that having an RT-PCR test result is mandatory including for children and infants. Transit passengers are advised to positively carry their test result to avoid any inconvenience to them during transit via Frankfurt.
